

Milwaukee Heart Failure Symposium 2022

Virtual/Saturday, May 14, 2022

8:00 AM to 1:45 PM

Course Directors: Nasir Sulemanjee, MD; Anthony DeFranco, MD

DESCRIPTION

The Milwaukee Heart Failure Symposium is designed to demonstrate innovations in the evaluation and treatment of heart failure. The primary goal is to promote excellence in the field of heart failure by encouraging the development and discussion of new advances in techniques and treatment.

This one-day symposium will educate physicians and other health care providers about cutting-edge therapies supporting the diagnosis and treatment of heart failure including state-of-the-art treatment, management of comorbid conditions, pulmonary hypertension, cardiomyopathies, mechanical circulatory support, and heart transplantation. Thought leaders in the field have been carefully selected for their expertise and teaching skills to provide a rigorous and interactive learning experience.

2022 KEYNOTE SPEAKER: Javed Butler, MD, MPH, MBA
Professor and Chair of the Dept. of Medicine;
Patrick H. Lehan Chair in Cardiovascular Research at the University of Mississippi Medical Center;
Recipient of the Simon Dack Award by the American College of Cardiology

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Address the current challenges in global care of heart failure patients
