

50th Annual Internal Medicine Conference

March 11-13, 2026 | 8 AM–6 PM

Friday Conference Center at UNC
Chapel Hill, NC

Celebrate 50 Years of Excellence in Primary Care Education!

Join us for the 50th Annual Internal Medicine Conference, a landmark event hosted by the Department of Medicine at the UNC School of Medicine. For five decades, this conference has been the trusted source for advancing clinical excellence in primary care and this year, we are raising the bar even higher.

What to Expect:

- Cutting-Edge Updates: Explore the latest evidence-based guidelines and research on health promotion and disease management for conditions commonly encountered in primary care.
- Expert-Led Sessions: Each of the Department's 11 clinical divisions will present dynamic sessions, complemented by free-standing presentations from UNC faculty across multiple specialties.
- Special Focus: A dedicated two-hour session on the use of controlled substances—critical knowledge for today's practice.
- Action-Oriented Learning: Move beyond knowledge gain. Analyze, evaluate, and apply new evidence to real-world scenarios. Create care plans that reduce variability and improve patient outcomes. Synthesize insights for collaborative decision-making.
